UPUTE

Pozorno slijedite sve upute.

Ne okrećite stranicu i ne rješavajte test dok to ne odobri dežurni nastavnik.

Nalijepite identifikacijsku naljepnicu na sve ispitne materijale koje ste dobili u omotnici.

Ispit traje 70 minuta bez prekida.

U dijelu u kojem se ispituje čitanje od Vas se očekuje:

- da u zadacima povezivanja i sređivanja svakoj čestici pitanja označenoj brojem pridružite odgovarajuću česticu odgovora označenu slovom (zadatci 1 i 3)
- da u zadacima višestrukoga izbora između četiriju ponuđenih odaberete jedan odgovor (zadatci 2 i 4).

Odgovore obvezno prepisite na list za odgovore.

- U zadacima dopunjavanja dopunite praznine odgovarajućim riječima (zadatak 5).

Odgovore upišite na predviđeno mjesto u ispitnoj knjižici i ne prepisujte ih na list za odgovore.

Kada riješite test, provjerite odgovore.

Želimo Vam puno uspjeha!

Ova ispitna knjižica ima 16 stranica, od toga 3 prazne.

Task 1

Questions 1-12

You are going to read an article in which people talk about shopping.

For questions 1-12, choose from the people A-F.

Mark your answer on the answer sheet.

There is an example at the beginning (0).

Anyone for Shopping?

A Alex

I simply adore those enormous shopping malls that they've recently built in the centre of the city. I always try to take advantage of any price reductions that they might have, especially on jeans or shoes. Occasionally, I don't even get anything, but it doesn't bother me. I just love the places and the atmosphere there. Everything's so shiny and attractive. Some people say that they are impersonal. But do you really want to get to know the shop assistant?

B Bruno

Those big malls on the outskirts are absolutely great places to hang out in. However, I must confess though that I actually can't stand the stores themselves. In fact, I can't bear any kind of store. If you ask me, people are always wasting their money on things that aren't necessary. That's why I steer clear of them. But the cafés and bars are totally cool. You can also get something to eat like a burger or slice of pizza. They've got a really decent range.

C Chris

For me shopping is something much more than a necessity. I get a real pleasure out of it. Everyone needs to escape from the pressures and demands of everyday life, and a bit of retail therapy is the way that I handle stress. However, if you ask me, it should be a solitary activity without the distraction of friends. I also never come back without purchasing something to wear. My friends think that it's terribly extravagant, but that's the kind of person I am.

D Diana

After we've finished doing the weekly shopping, we sometimes take the kids to see the latest blockbuster. They love the look of these big, bright malls where we shop. It's one of the highlights of the week for them both. The only thing is that everywhere is so packed these days. Sometimes you can barely move. You also spend so much money but you feel like you haven't actually bought anything. I suppose that's just part of modern life. At the end of the day, it's worth it though.

Of course, supermarkets might very well be cheaper, but it takes absolutely ages to get there and then you have to hang around with masses of people in enormous queues all day. It's simply unbearable. In my local shop, I get everything done quickly. I always have a little chat with the owner too. We've known each other for years. You don't get that in a huge store. They're so cold. I hate them all. I swear that you'll never catch me in one again as long as I live.

It really gets me down when we have to go shopping with the kids. It's not waiting in a line with them. I can handle that. It's just that they're always asking for something. Sometimes, I feel like I'm going to explode. We end up getting useless stuff that wasn't even on the list. Sometimes I really wonder if they think that we're made of money. It's completely different when we go alone and leave the children at home. I quite enjoy it then.

Which person...

0 looks out for things that are cheaper than usual?

1 finds it crowded where they shop?

2 can find going to stores stressful?

3 always buys some clothing?

4 likes to combine shopping with another activity?

5 goes to shopping centres for social reasons?

6 often buys things that they don't need?

7 can't stand waiting in stores?

8 dislikes going to shops?

9 sometimes buys nothing when they go shopping?

10 prefers to shop on their own?

11 likes the appearance of where they shop?

12 prefers a personal atmosphere?

Task 2

Questions 13-18

Read the article about a celebrity chef. For questions 13-18, choose the correct answer (A, B, C or D). Mark your answer on the answer sheet.

Adam Walker – Celebrity Chef

My first contact with the restaurant trade came when I was about fourteen. I was looking for a weekend job to earn a bit of money, so I asked my uncle if I could help out at his restaurant. I just used to peel the potatoes and wash the dishes, but I absolutely loved the place, especially the kitchen. It was full of noise and there were people running around everywhere. I was fascinated by it all, and I actually got paid for it! Even the occasional celebrity would come into the restaurant. Everyone was really friendly too.

I found school hard and did poorly in my final exams, so I decided to leave at sixteen to train to become a chef. My friends laughed about it and joked that cooking was for girls. That didn't bother me, though.

It was exhausting at college and I had to get used to getting up earlier than when I was at school. The really tough bit was the practical part of the course. This was when we had to go and work in a kitchen. Some of the chefs could get really angry if you made a mistake. I nearly ended up in tears on more than one occasion, although I can laugh about it now. Nevertheless, I learnt a lot about the profession during this time. It didn't seem to matter that I had no social life.

After college, I worked for a couple of years in London. However, I realised that there were so many graduates that if I really wanted to succeed, I had to do something different. That's why I got a job in Italy. It was great learning to cook in another culture, although I struggled a bit with the language at first. I could have spent more time there, but a year seemed about right, especially when you consider the long shifts I was working. Italy's an amazing place. I wish I had travelled round more. Maybe I'll buy a holiday home in Tuscany one day.

When I got back home to Britain, I opened up my own restaurant. We do all sorts of fish dishes from tuna steaks to squid and octopus. I'm on my feet all day, but I've got no regrets.

I'm very passionate about cooking, and one day someone suggested that I should write a book. Living abroad makes you appreciate your own culture more, so I decided I'd do something on our national cuisine. After all, you've got books on everything from low-fat diets and vegetarianism to how to cook on a small budget. I knew there was a market for books on cooking, and I was right. The book became an enormous success.

I often get asked how the TV programme about me started. A lot of people assume we just wanted to copy the cooking programmes that were already on television. What actually happened is that one day a friend who works in TV turned up to interview me about my book for the local news. When she arrived, I was having this furious argument with one of the waiters. He'd been rude to a customer and I was really angry. I even smashed a plate on the floor. The camera crew thought that this was great TV and that's how the series about my restaurant was born.

Task 3

Questions 19-24

You are going to read an article about a shark attack.

Seven sentences have been removed from the article. Choose from the sentences A-H the one which fits each gap (19-24). Mark your answer on the answer sheet.

There are two letters which you do not need.

There is an example at the beginning (0).

Shark Attack!

It was summer 2006 and I was swimming off Sunrise Beach in Cape Town. Sightings of sharks in that area had been increasing, although they weren't something I ever worried about. I was 24 and out with some friends and my younger brother, Stan. (0) I. Two guys stayed in a boat nearer the shore while Stan and I swam a little farther out. Then something caught my eye – I looked around and saw a large shark fin darting towards my brother. I screamed to the guys in the boat to get Stan out. (19) _____. It worked. But now the fin turned and came towards me, before disappearing.

I felt relieved that Stan was safe, but scared because I was now the only person in the water. Seconds later, a huge black shape rose up beside me. I was face to face with a 15ft great white. I touched the shark with my feet to try to push myself away and it swung its body round, making a colossal splash. I tried desperately to push myself up, but for some reason my right leg wouldn't move. I looked down and saw why: everything below my knee was in the shark's mouth. (20) _____. I thought about not being able to say goodbye to my parents, that this was the end.

I shouted to the guys in the boat. There hadn't been time for them to reach me or call for help – they'd only just picked up my brother. (21) _____. By now I was dangling against the side of the shark's body, out of breath and in shock. Then it took me underwater, shaking me with my leg in its mouth. (22) _____. "I'm not going down without a fight," I thought. I started attacking the shark with all my remaining strength, grabbing its eye and punching its nose.

I gave one last enormous push and heard a great snapping sound. Suddenly, I was free. (23) _____. The boat was nearer now, and Stan saw me floating in the water. He grabbed my hand and started pulling me out. I didn't know it, but halfway down my shin there was nothing left.

At the hospital, they did two amputations, the first to tidy up the wound, the second one to enable me to use a prosthesis. I certainly had my dark times, and at first was angry about what had happened to me. I even thought about ending it all. (24) _____. So I set my sights on making the national swimming team, and in 2008 I represented South Africa at the Beijing Paralympics.

I know it sounds strange, but I'm very happy with how things turned out. I was just in the wrong place at the wrong time.

Task 4

Questions 25-32

Read the article "I Always Forget".

For questions 25-32, choose the answer (A, B, C or D) that best fits each space.

Mark your answer on the answer sheet.

There is an example at the beginning (0).

"I Always Forget"

When you're overwhelmed, your mind (0) A forget. Forgetting is a useful strategy to (25) ___ your mind for new tasks and challenges. Your mind is programmed to remember (26) ___ helps you to survive. You remember bad experiences so you can avoid them in the future and good ones so you can repeat them. It's easy to remember the food you hate or the things you're keen (27) ___. It's not at all easy to remember something that's (28) ___ good nor bad. In other words, information without emotion is very difficult to remember. So if you need to learn a list of new words or (29) ___ facts or quotations, you will not remember them (30) ___ unless you add an emotional value to them. But it's no good (31) ___ yourself "there's a test tomorrow". You might panic. Instead, take a positive attitude and create a system. For example, it's much better to sort the items you want to remember into groups that have something in common or make the items into a story, (32) ___ strange that story may be. And finally, don't forget that revision is the most important thing of all.

Questions 33-40

Read and complete the text below.

Fill each space (33-40) with one word. Write your answer only here in this exam booklet.

There is an example at the beginning (0).

Mysterious Britain

Melted Stones

Britain is a land (0) ____ in prehistoric monuments. Scotland has 60 ruins whose stones have been melted (33) ____ intense heat. How this happened is not certain. Are they the result of alien guns or prehistoric nuclear explosion?

It's more likely that the ancient peoples knew how to melt rock. By (34) ____ fire to a sophisticated design of wood, bricks and stones, they succeeded (35) ____ fusing rocks together.

Stonehenge

The purpose of stone circles is a mystery as (36) _____. A favourite explanation is that they were used as observatories to regulate the ancient calendar. Stonehenge is, for example, an amazingly accurate one. There are many other stone rings (37) ____ astronomical purpose is much harder to explain. What we do know is that you didn't need a large civilization to build these places. With clever techniques, 200 people (38) ____ 15 and 25 years of age could have built Stonehenge in 30 years. Nobody has thought about these techniques because nobody has ever had (39) _____. We have cranes to do the work for us today. All the same, people will continue to have ideas on why, how and by (40) _____ ancient monuments were built.
